

Abstract

In vitro transcribed (IVT) mRNA has recently come into focus as a new drug class to deliver genetic information. The seminar will outline recent advances which addressed challenges inherent to this drug class, depict peculiarities of different types of mRNA vectors, and provide mechanistic insights relevant for immun-engineering of mRNA vaccines for prevention of infectious diseases and treatment of cancer and autoimmune diseases.